If I could make anything I would make a button that would bring you something if you lost it. This would help because lots of people lose things everyday. When you lost something you press the button while saying what you lost and then it would appear in your pocket.