

My New Invention

If I were to make any invention, I would make a spaceship good enough to go Mars, so that when we eventually mess up Earth, the astronauts will get a head start on making life suitable on the big red planet. NASA already found a source of water, we just have to get a bunch of animals for food and stuff. We would have to make a new currency because all the old paper money burned away when everybody nukes everybody else. I would make the spaceship's name Ultrix because that just sounds really cool and it came up when I was smashing my fingers on the keyboard. iru4ueifkfjvrvjf
