

On screen tech ;)

An invention I think that will help people in the future is improved technology. Technology that is actually not on screen. Like a projector, it projects stuff to the screen. This invention is a computer but instead of a screen, it is a screen floating in the air, like a projector (2nd time i've said this). So, you know how a projector projects a computer screen for everyone to see? Well this is almost exactly the same, but it is without a projector and its more high definition (like 1080p). And you can also touch the screen and control it. You don't have to be near your computer or laptop, you just have to be near the screen. Also, it'll be secure by the best hackers in the world. The hackers in the world will make the best security because it was made by the best hackers. The data would also be encrypted with the tech the hackers use.

← This is what I mean ;)